Market Closing—There was some irregularity in course of prices in late afternoon, but the market's tone was good and buying appeared to be better than the selling. It was not believed, however, that much activity would develop until rate decision was rendered.

Decision in Shreveport rate case was considered highly important, putting a curb upon radicalism of State railroad commissions and placing to a larger extent than before the right to regulate railroad rates where the financial and railroad community would like to see it placed; namely, in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Government crop report was considered highly favorable, the showing for all crops being up to or above the expectations.
